Bastard or Playmate
Vanderbeeken, Robrecht
Amsterdam: University Press, 2012
English

Artistic media seem to be in a permanent condition of mutation and transformation. Contemporary artists often investigate the limits and possibilities of the media they use and experiment with the crossing, upgrading and mutilation of media. Others explicitly explore the unknown intermedial space between existing media, searching for the hybrid beings that occupy these in-betweens. This issue of Theater Topics explores the theme of mutating and adapting media in its relation with theatre and performance.

Bringing together international scholars and artists, this book provides a comprehensive overview of the subject. Throughout, Bastard or Playmate? is responsive to the cross-disciplinary use of key concepts such as remediation, digitization, interactivity, corporeality, liveness, surveillance, spectacle, performativity and theatricality. The book guides readers new to the area of intermediality, as well as experienced researchers into one of the most dynamic fields of scholarship.

Choreographing Relations
Petra Sabisch
München: Epodium, 2010
English

"Choreographing Relations" undertakes the experiment of a conceptual site development of contemporary choreography by means of practical philosophy. Guided by the radically empiricist question "What Can Choreography Do?" the book investigates the performances of Antonia Baehr, Juan Dominguez, Xavier Le Roy, and Eszter Salamon, and the philosophical works of Gilles Deleuze and Félix Guattari. It establishes a relation between these practitioners as an encounter in method, and develops method as a singular, material and experimental practice. In view of these singular methods and the participatory relations to which they give rise, Choreographing Relations offers a prolific inventory of arepresentational procedures that qualitatively transformed choreography and philosophy at the turn of the twentieth century.

Köln: Verlag der Buchhandlung König, 2006

English

This book is the outcome of collaborative research by artists Natascha Sadr Haghian, Judith Hopf, Ines Schaber and curator Anselm Franke into various aspects of the spectral. It questions the circumstances of disappearance and invisibility and the relationships brought forth by the spectre, the withdrawal of the status of reality and the conditions for transformation: the spectral destabilizes relationships between real and unreal, present and absent. With contributions and dialogues by and with Ines Schaber, Natascha Sadr Haghian, Stefan Pente, and Judith Hopf, as well as Avery F. Gordon, Anselm Franke, Nicolas Siepen, Sladja Blazan, Thomas Keenan, and Michael Taussig.

PostPornPolitics: Queer_Feminist Perspective on the Politics of Porn Performances and Sex_Work as Cultural Produktion

Stüttgen, Tim (ed.)
Berlin: b_books, 2009
English

The concept called "post-porn" was invented by erotic photographer Wink van Kempen and made popular by sexwork-activist and performance artist Annie M. Sprinkle. It claimed a new status of sexual representation: Through identifying with critical joy and agency while deconstructing its hetero/normative and naturalising conditions, Sprinkle made us think of sex as a category open for use and appropriation of queer_feminist counter-pleasures beyond the victimising framework of censorship and taboo.

Renate Lorenz
Bielefeld: Transcript Verlag, 2012
English

A queer theory of visual art – based on extensive readings of art works Queer Art traces the question of how strategies of denormalization initiated by visual arts can be continued through writing. The works discussed include those by Zoe Leonard, Shinique Smith, Jack Smith, Wu Ingrid Tsang, Ron Vawter, Bob Flanagan, Henrik Olesen, Felix Gonzalez-Torres, Sharon Hayes, and Pauline Boudry/Renate Lorenz.

A Woman Who... Essays, Interviews, Scripts

Yvonne Rainer

Baltimore, Maryland: The John Hopkins University Press, 1999

English

Yvonne Rainer is one of the most important feminist, avant-garde filmmakers working today. She began her career as a dancer and choreographer, and was one of the founders of the Judson Dance Theater. Since the mid-1970s, however, she has worked almost entirely in film and her works in that medium have been the subject of more than a dozen retrospectives, the most recent of which was at the Film Society of Lincoln Center. Her works have unblinkingly explored such issues as menopause, breast cancer, lesbianism, sexual dissatisfaction, and political violence against women. Increasingly, they have moved beyond the festival circuit to premiere in art theaters in the United States as well as overseas.

Dance, Space and Subjectivity

Valerie A Briginshaw

Basingstoke: Palgrave MacMillan Press, 2009

English

This book contains close readings of postmodern dances and dance films informed by current critical theories. It explores the roles dance and space play in constructing subjectivity. Focusing on site-specific dance, the mutual construction of bodies and spaces, body/space interfaces and 'in-between spaces', the dances and dance films are read 'against the grain' to reveal their potential for troubling conventional notions of subjectivity associated with a white, Western, heterosexual, able-bodied male norm. The works of choreographers such as Lea Anderson, Pina Bausch, Trisha Brown, Anne Teresa De Keersmaeker, William Forsythe, Shobana Jeyasingh and Mark Morris are informed by the theories of writers such as Mikhail Bakhtin, Gilles Deleuze, Michel Foucault, Donna Haraway, Julia Kristeva and Henri Lefebvre. The result is a fascinating mix of ideas and practice never before placed together within the context of dance.

Gender articulated: language and the socially constructed self

Kria Hall, Mary Bucholtz

New York; London: Routledge, 1995

English

Gender Articulated forges new connections between language-related fields and feminist theory. The essays presented here examine a range of cultures, languages and settings explicitly connecting feminist theory to language research. Some of the most distinguished scholars working in the field of language and gender today discuss such topics as Japanese women's appropriation of 'men's language', the literary representation of lesbian discourse and the silencing of women on the Internet.

Gender Trouble: Feminism and the Subversion of Identity

Judith Butler

New York; London: Routledge, 1990

English

One of the most talked-about scholarly works of the past fifty years, Judith Butler's Gender Trouble is as celebrated as it is controversial. Arguing that traditional feminism is wrong to look to a natural, 'essential' notion of the female, or indeed of sex or gender, Butler starts by questioning the category 'woman' and continues in this vein with examinations of 'the masculine' and 'the feminine'. Best known however, but also most often misinterpreted, is Butler's concept of gender as a reiterated social performance rather than the expression of a prior reality. Thrilling and provocative, few other academic works have roused passions to the same extent.

Glorious Catastrophe: Jack Smith, Performance and Visual Culture

Dominic Johnson

Manchester: University Press, 2012

English

Glorious catastrophe presents a detailed critical analysis of the work of Jack Smith from the early 1960s until his AIDS-related death in 1989. Dominic Johnson argues that Smith's work offers critical strategies for rethinking art's histories after 1960. Heralded by peers as well as later generations of artists, Smith is an icon of the New York avant-garde. Nevertheless, he is conspicuously absent from dominant histories of American culture in the 1960s, as well as from narratives of the impact that decade would have on coming years. Smith poses uncomfortable challenges to cultural criticism and historical analysis, which Glorious catastrophe seeks to uncover. The first critical analysis of Smith's practices across visual art, film, performance and writing, the study employs extensive, original archival research carried out in Smith's personal papers, and unpublished interviews with friends and collaborators. It will be essential reading for students and scholars interested in the life and art of Jack Smith, and the greater histories that he interrupts, including those of experimental arts practices, and the development of sexual cultures.

Gertrude Stein

New Haven & London: Yale University Press, 1941

English

This is the story of Ida, whose life consists mainly of resting, because she is always tired; of talking to herself; and of getting married, time after time. Gertrude Stein wanted "Ida" to be known in two ways: as a novel about a woman in the age of celebrity culture and as a text with its own story to tell.

Interfaces: women, autobiography, image performance

Sidonie Smith, Julia Watson (eds.)

Ann Arbor: The University of Michigan Press, 2002

English

Modern and contemporary women's artistic production of autobiography frequently occurs at the interfaces of image and text. The many permutations of words and images in all their modes of production--photograph, pose, invocation, written narrative, sculpture, dance, diatribe--create countless possibilities of expression, and this volume charts some of the ways in which women artists are seizing these possibilities. Editors Sidonie Smith and Julia Watson have been at the vanguard of the study of women's self-representation, and here have collected leading critics' and scholars' thoughts on artistic fusions of the visual and autobiographical. Marianne Hirsch, Linda Hutcheon, Linda Kauffman, Nellie McKay, Marjorie Perloff, Lee Quinby, and the other contributors offer new insights into the work of such artists as Laurie Anderson, Judy Chicago, Frida Kahlo, Orlan, and Cindy Sherman. From a painter's diary to a performance artist's ritualized enactments of kitchen domesticity, the many narratives of the self arising from these artists' negotiations of the visual and textual prove to be goldmines for analysis.

Kontrasexuelles Manifest

Beatrix Preciado

Berlin: b_books, 2003

German

Der Dildo stiftet Unbehagen/Lust. Und tatsächlich ist der Dildo das Stück, das fehlt, um das paranoide Rätsel zu lösen, das der lesbische Sex im sexuellen heterozentristischen Modell darstellt; als ermögliche er die Antwort auf jene drängende Frage: Wie ficken Lesben ohne Penis? Ob er dem Sex hinzugefügt wird oder an seine Stelle tritt, der Dildo als Supplement ist außerhalb und bleibt außerhalb des organischen Körpers. Der Dildo ist ein Alien. Er ist gleichermaßen und paradoxerweise eine exakte Kopie und das, was dem Organ am fremdesten ist. Der Dildo richtet den Penis gegen sich selbst. Er wird als natürlich gedacht, als Präsenz und ist in dieser Hinsicht selbstgenügsam. In der heterosexuellen Mythologie genügt ein Penis. Hat man zwei davon, fällt man bereits unter die Monstrosität eines lebendigen Doubles: was ist der Dildo und was der Penis? Hat man keinen Penis, fällt man gleich unter einen anderen Typ Monstrosität, unter die natürliche Monstrosität der Feminität.

N°25

Mad for Foucault: rethinking the foundations of Queer Theory

Lynne Huffer

New York: Colombia University Press, 2010

English

Michel Foucault was the first to embed the roots of human sexuality in discipline and biopolitics, therefore revolutionizing our conception of sex and its relationship to society, economics, and culture. Yet over the past two decades, scholars have limited themselves to the study of Foucault's History of Sexuality, volume 1 paying lesser attention to his equally explosive History of Madness. In this earlier volume, Foucault recasts Western rationalism as a project that both produces and represses sexual deviants, calling out the complicity of modern science and the exclusionary nature of family morality. By reclaiming these deft moves, Lynne Huffer teases out exciting new strands of Foucauldian thought. She then revisits the theorist's ethical work in light of these discoveries, divining an ethics of eros that sees sexuality as a lived experience we are repeatedly called on to remember. Throughout her study, Huffer weaves her own experiences together with Foucault's, sampling from unpublished interviews and other archived materials in order to intimately rework the problem of sexuality as a product of reason.

Small Acts of Repair: Performance, Ecology and Goat Island

Stephen Bottoms, Matthew Goulish

New York: Routledge, 2007

English

Goat Island are one of the world's leading contemporary performance ensembles. Their intimate, low-tech, intensely physical performances represent a unique hybrid of strategies and techniques drawn from live art, experimental theatre and postmodern dance. Small Acts of Repair: Performance, Ecology and Goat Island, is the first book to document and critique the company's performances, processes, politics, aesthetics, and philosophies. It reflects on the company's work through the critical lens of ecology - an emerging and urgent concern in performance studies and elsewhere. This collage text combines and juxtaposes writing by company members and arts commentators, to look in detail at Goat Island's distinctive collaborative processes and the reception of their work in performance.

Undoing Gender

Judith Butler

New York: Routledge, 2004

English

Undoing Gender constitutes Judith Butler's reflections on gender and sexuality, focusing on new kinship, psychoanalysis and the incest taboo, transgender, intersex, diagnostic categories, social violence, and the tasks of social transformation. In terms that draw from feminist and queer theory, Butler considers the norms that govern--and fail to govern--gender and sexuality as they relate to the constraints on recognizable personhood. The book constitutes a reconsideration of her earlier view on gender performativity from Gender Trouble. In this work, the critique of gender norms is clearly situated within the framework of human persistence and survival. And to "do" one's gender in certain ways sometimes implies "undoing" dominant notions of personhood. She writes about the "New Gender Politics" that has emerged in recent years, a combination of movements concerned with transgender, transsexuality, intersex, and their complex relations to feminist and queer theory.

WACK! Art and the feminist revolution

Catherine Lord, Cornelia Butler, a.o.

Los Angeles: The Museum of Contemporary Art; Cambridge: The MIT Press, 2007
English

This title covers groundbreaking art from a revolutionary era, featuring work by more than 120 international artists. There had never been art like the art produced by women artists in the 1970s - and there has never been a book with the ambition and scope of this one about that groundbreaking era. "WACK!" documents and illustrates the impact of the feminist revolution on art made between 1965 and 1980, featuring pioneering and influential works by artists who came of age during that period - Chantal Akerman, Lynda Benglis, Theresa Hak Kyung Cha, Valie Export, Mary Heilmann, Sanja Ivekovic, Ana Mendieta, Annette Messager, and others - as well as important works made in those years by artists whose careers were already well established, including Louise Bourgeois, Judy Chicago, Sheila Levant de Bretteville, Lucy Lippard, Alice Neel, and Yoko Ono.

Yvonne Rainer: The Mind is a Muscle

Catherine Wood

London: Afterall Publishing, 2007

English

In this extended illustrated essay exploring The Mind is a Muscle, Catherine Wood examines the political and media context in which Rainer chose to use the dance-theatre situation as her medium and analyzes Rainer's radical approach to image-making in live form. Rainer's work has been linked strongly with minimalist sculpture: she compared the neutral, specific qualities of those objects to her own work-like or task-like, ordinary dance, and she collaborated early on with Robert Morris. But The Mind is a Muscle manifests an agitated and contradictory relationship to the idea of work in the context of an affluent, postwar America. Wood describes the way the choreography of The Mind is a Muscle proposed a new lexicon of movement that stripped away the gestural conventions of dance or theater narrative in an attempt to present the human subject on her own terms while at the same time manipulating the seductiveness of the image, increasingly being harnessed by capitalism. Rainer's legacy persists through her decision to allow the Trio A from The Mind is a Muscle as a multiple, distributed by being taught to many dancers and non-dancers, proposing, Wood argues, for the art object as code.

Running Commentary on "The Present" by Arantxa Martinez and Lola Rubio

Commentary by: Antonia Baehr, Eleanor Bauer and Alice Chauchat

Running Commentaries has a set-up similar to that of a lecture with live translation. While a piece is performed live or projected in video format on a big screen, two or three "interpreters" (artists, researchers, theoreticians, art critics) watch from individual booths and deliver their commentary live. The spectators are equipped with multi-channel headsets, allowing them to listen to the commentary of their choice, or switch back and forth between various commentaries. In this way, they build their own soundtrack over the course of the spectacle by positioning themselves based on what they hear and see.

WITH KIND SUPPORT OF:

Genderklik en het Vlaamse gelijkekansenbeleid

Gender staat voor alle ideeën, verwachtingen en vooroordelen die bestaan in verband met wat 'mannelijk' en 'vrouwelijk' is. Gender beïnvloedt je leven, van begin tot einde. Eens je doorhebt hoe gender werkt en welke mechanismen er spelen, kan je je leven uitbouwen, ongeacht je geslacht. Op dat moment heb je de genderklik gemaakt en het stereotiepe man-vrouw denken doorbroken.

Het Vlaamse gelijkekansenbeleid wil mensen bewust maken van de structurele gendermechanismen die het leven van zowel mannen als vrouwen bepalen. Die mechanismen zijn vaak zo impliciet dat ze onherkenbaar worden. Je kan je terecht afvragen of sommige keuzes individueel en vrij genomen worden, dan wel of ze in de eerste plaats moeten voldoen aan (onuitgesproken) verwachtingen van de maatschappij. Denk maar aan studiekeuzes, loopbaankeuzes, enzovoort. Zodra de genderklik gemaakt is, kunnen genderongelijkheden pas écht aangepakt worden.

De Vlaamse minister voor Gelijke Kansen, Pascal Smet, wil in deze beleidsperiode zo'n genderklik nastreven. Hij zet daarom een genderklikactieplan op poten, dat wil aanzetten tot nadenken over de invloed van gendermechanismen in het leven van alledag.

Het genderklikactieplan bestaat uit een waaier aan initiatieven, waaronder projecten in het kleuteronderwijs, de vakbonden, de technologische industrie, het secundair onderwijs en het theater. Ook het gelijkekansenmiddenveld speelt haar rol. Een ander belangrijk luik van het genderklikactieplan is de genderklikcampagne, die zich specifiek richt op jongvolwassenen en voor het najaar gepland staat. Daarnaast worden er ook genderklikprojecten ondersteund en wordt in 2013 een kader aangeboden voor culturele acties in Brussel die een sterke inhoudelijke link hebben met de genderklikthematiek. De expositie en bibliotheek van 'Make Up' is één van die acties.

*Meer weten? Of heb je zelf een idee voor een culturele actie in Brussel?

Gender?

Gender is een begrip dat uit de Engelse taal komt en betekent letterlijk sociaal geslacht. Vrouwen en mannen verschillen van elkaar op 2 manieren: fysiek en sociaal. Fysieke verschillen = sekse, sociale verschillen = gender.

Sekse is bepaald door de natuur; gender door de cultuur.

Je wordt als mens geboren met een biologisch bepaalde sekse en een samenleving voegt daar gender aan toe: gender bestaat uit een hele laag ideeën en verwachtingen over hoe vrouwen en mannen verschillen en hoe ze zich wel en niet horen te gedragen.

Deze ideeën en verwachtingen over vrouwen en mannen gebruiken we in onze kindertijd als bouwstenen van onze identiteit en zo worden we bovenop onze fysieke sekse, ook op het sociale vlak tot man en vrouw gemaakt. De ene samenleving denkt daar anders over dan de andere. Onze grootouders hadden andere ideeën dan wij over wat gepast was voor mannen en vrouwen. Genderverschillen liggen dus niet vast.

Genderverschillen versus sekseverschillen

Er is heel wat discussie over welke m/v verschillen bepaald worden door de natuur en toebehoren aan je sekse, en welke verschillen ontstaan onder invloed van een bepaalde cultuur en dus behoren tot je gender. Dat mannen van Mars komen en vrouwen van Venus mag dan de titel van een populair boek zijn, grondig en betrouwbaar wetenschappelijk onderzoek heeft intussen uitgewezen dat genderverschillen sociale verschillen zijn - net als de verschillen tussen allochtoon en autochtoon, arm en rijk - en dat je er dus niet mee geboren wordt.

Hoe ontstaan genderverschillen?

Stel je even een andere wereld voor, een wereld waar de mensen overtuigd zijn dat blauwogige mensen anders zijn dan groen- en bruinogige mensen. De blauwogigen zijn slimmer en sneller, zo denken ze, en de groen/bruinogigen zijn liever en zorgzamer. Van bij hun geboorte verwachten ouders van de blauwogigen dat ze slim en snel zijn; ze spelen dan ook heel slimme en snelle spelletjes met de blauwogigen omdat ze denken dat die dat leuk vinden. De bruin/groenogigen mogen het rustiger aan doen. Hun ouders babbelen meer met hen, spelen zorgzame spelletjes met hen en vertellen hen elke dag hoe lief te zijn. 20 jaar later zien de ouders dat ze gelijk hadden; de blauwogigen kiezen slimme en snelle activiteiten en studies. Bij de activiteiten en studies waar je moet zorgen voor anderen, zijn er veel meer groen/bruinogigen. En iedereen is er rotsvast van overtuigd dat de keuzes die ze maken, hun eigen keuzes zijn. Als je hen vertelt dat ze beïnvloed werden door de ideeën van hun ouders over blauw- en groen/bruinogigen, kunnen ze dat maar moeilijk geloven.

Bij genderverschillen is het net zo: we willen er als kind allemaal graag bij horen en we maken ons de culturele codes van de groep waar we bij horen zodanig eigen, dat ze deel van onze identiteit lijken. Daarom gaan velen er vanuit dat genderverschillen eigenlijk sekseverschillen zijn waar we mee geboren worden.

Maar – en dat is voor velen een hele opluchting – we zijn niet veroordeeld tot deze stereotypen (overdreven beelden van groepen die niet kloppen met de werkelijkheid) over meisjes en jongens, mannen en vrouwen. We kunnen ons bewust worden van hun invloed en we kunnen die invloed verminderen. Dat is, in een notendop, de genderklik.
